

Stanborough Park

Parking addresses: Stanborough Rd, Welwyn Garden City AL8 6DF.

Parking: There is pay and display parking available on both sides of the Stanborough road at the address shown above. If you don't want to pay and don't mind walking a couple of hundred yards, there is free parking available in nearby residential roads, such as: Stacklands, Welwyn Garden City, AL8 6XW.

Entrance to the larger north side car park via Stanborough Road.

Aerial shot shows that the south side car park is fairly small.

Walk: Stanborough Park, AKA Stanborough Lakes, is a 126-acre park in Welwyn Garden City, Hertfordshire.

Formerly a sand quarry, the park features two lakes and two car parks, and is divided into two parts by the A6129, Stanborough Road.

The lake on the north side is referred to as the Boating Lake – with small boats for hire - and the south side is the Sailing Lake. Also on the south side is the Terranova Italian restaurant (proper restaurant by the lake).

Café-style facilities are also available on the south side should you require a simple cup of tea and bun.

The south side is very popular with anglers, and there is a small nature reserve at one end of it. Stanborough Lakes is a pleasant location for a walk and a picnic when the weather's good.

Food and drink:

The Terranova restaurant is right in the south side of the park. Carfe facilities are also available.
